

Giving at work

Blood cancers remain the third biggest cause of cancer death in Australia and claim the lives of more Australians than breast cancer and skin cancer. Donating regularly through Giving at Work will directly help those affected by blood cancer.

We don't receive direct government funding and rely on Queensland employees Giving at Work to support our urgent vision to cure blood cancers and support patients when they need it most.

By Giving at Work, you will help to provide patient accommodation, emotional support, and financial assistance, while helping us continue our commitment to one day beating blood cancers through world-class research.

Giving at work also means you are able to make regular donations as a tax effective payroll deduction.

EMPLOYEES: START GIVING

Becoming part of Giving at Work is easy. Simply complete our Employee Approval Form and submit it to your HR/Payroll department. You can find the Employee Approval Form at leukaemiaqld.org.au/givingatwork.

Your company will then deduct your chosen amount each pay cycle and forward it directly to us so your donation can start making a difference straight away. Your employer will advise you in writing at the end of the financial year how much you have donated.

 You will receive your tax savings immediately because your donations are deducted from your pay before tax is applied.

 No need to worry about collecting receipts for your tax return!

Full details on how to get started are on our Employee Approval Form at leukaemiaqld.org.au/givingatwork.

EMPLOYERS: SIGN UP

Offering the Giving at Work program to employees shows your company's commitment to beating blood cancer in the community.

If you're an employer, the first step is to complete and return our simple Employer Approval Form to givingatwork@leukaemia.org.au. You can find the Employer Approval Form at leukaemiaqld.org.au/givingatwork.

Once we have your form we can create a donor account for your company and supply you with everything you need to make the program a success in your workplace, including how to get your employees involved.

Our Employer Information Kit contains lots more information about Giving at Work, including details on tax, donor notifications, payment summaries and FAQs. You can find the kit at leukaemiaqld.org.au/givingatwork.
